What is Decentralized?

Decentralized means there is no single central authority or control. Instead, power and decision-making are spread across a network of participants.

In crypto & finance:

Traditional system (Centralized): A bank controls your money, a government controls the currency.

Decentralized system: Transactions happen directly between people (peer-to-peer) using blockchain technology, without needing a middleman.

◇ Examples

Bitcoin & Ethereum: No single company owns them. The network of users maintains it.

DeFi (Decentralized Finance): Lending, borrowing, or trading without banks.
